The Railway Tax

Representative Barker who introduced the original petition and therefore assumed general charge of it telegraphed Major Bragg yesterday that Governor Burleigh had signed the bill refunding to the cities and towns where European and North American Railway stock is owned the tax collected by the State for the years 1884 5-6 and now in the state treasury. Bangor's proportion of this tax amounts to between $15 000 and $16 000 which will very largely pay for the new electric light plant to be put in this spring. Much credit is due our present city officials for the zeal with which they have prepared and presented the city's case. This done it was intrusted to the hands of our able delegation in the Legislature who have labored untiringly to bring this act of justice to a prompt and successful issue. They have well earned the thanks of the tax payers of Bangor who will fully appreciate the efforts of their officials both here and at Augusta.

Troublesome Facts

The testimony of the St. John Telegraph showing that the secret ballot has proved ineffective as a check to bribery, is a serious stumbling block in the way of the Portland Press which flounders about in a truly pitiable fashion in its efforts to evade this damaging fact. After all the talk that has been made about the safeguards this system of voting would throw around the ballot, the Press now only claims for it at the best that it will make bribery more difficult and therefore diminish it. But he is again our hard pushed contemporary is contradicted by the statement of the Telegraph which distinctly says that bribery has increased greatly under the ballot system. These are troublesome facts for the Press but we cannot permit it to dodge them as it attempted to do by only referring to a portion of the Telegraph's testimony concerning the secret ballot system. Even if it is admitted that the charges against our present system are well founded which is not the fact, it appears that this law does not afford the remedy sought for but that it has failed to do in the Dominion just that which is expected of it in this State.

The Capital Question

Bangor has appointed a committee to go to Augusta next Thursday and urge before the committee on removal of the Capital the claims of that city. There are five or six counties in the State which Bangor would better convenience than Portland but to the great majority of the counties and of the people as well Portland would be preferable.—Portland Press.

Had it remained for the Press to settle this question in its own mind the foundation of the Capitol would already be laid in Portland, but the people are going to be heard before any change is made. The Press assertion is not susceptible of proof. Bangor is the centre of the State and would better convenience the whole people than any other locality. Portland has a larger population but that will have no influence upon this matter wherever the people decide upon a change because such a change will be made when it is made in the interest of the whole people and not to boom any particular place. The hearing before the legislative committee will be held Thursday night and all of the gentlemen who have been chosen to represent Bangor should make it in their way to be present on that occasion.

Washington Star.

A HISTORIC NEIGHBORHOOD.

Mr Blaine's New Home and Its Surroundings.

THE NOTED SEWARD HOUSE ON LAFAYETTE SQUARE—JUSTICE CARTER'S ACCOUNT OF THE ATTACK ON SECRETARY SEWARD—WHERE GEN SICKLES SHOT BARTON KEY—THE LAFAYETTE PARK FENCE

The announcement in Wednesday's Star of the fact that Mr Blaine had made arrangements for renting a house in this city has called attention to the historic character of a large number of residences in the immediate vicinity of the famous No 17 Lafayette Square, which will shelter the Blaine family for some years to come. Within the limits of that square events have been shaped which swayed the nation, and intrigue has been plotted and consummated which ended in the taking of human life and the destruction of the happiness of more than one individual.

MR BLAINE'S NEW HOME

Like the residence of Senator Don Cameron which it adjoins, Mr Blaine's new home will be thoroughly adapted to the uses of society. It is one of the historic houses of the city, and could its walls speak they would tell stories of mirth and sadness, love and hatred, diplomacy, wit, wine women and murder such as would hardly be dreamed of. The property which Mr Blaine has leased, through the firm of Thomas J Fisher & Co was recently sold to Mr David King by the heirs of A B Stoughton. When it was purchased by Mr Stoughton some time in the fifties it was used as a club house. Commodore Rogers who was the owner, had built the house some years before and made his home there until his death. By Mr Stoughton's hands the mansion was converted into a fashionable boarding house, and from this it soon resolved itself into a club house. In one of its rooms Barton Key was borne after being shot by Sickles in the street nearly in front of the house and from one of its upper windows Key signalled with his handkerchief to Mrs. Sickles across the square and in the same manner the fair dame replied.

It is singular and not very widely known fact that President Buchanan had donned his hat and coat for the purpose of calling upon Mrs. Sickles, and was about to leave the White House when the news came to him that Gen Sickles had shot Barton Key. Of course Mr Buchanan was not afraid of Gen. Sickles, but it has been satisfactorily established that he took off his hat and overcoat and remained in the White House for some hours afterward.

SECRETARY SEWARD'S RESIDENCE

It was in this old club-house that Secretary Seward resided, and it was here that the attempt was made to assassinate him on the night Lincoln was shot. The late Chief Justice Carter had a fund of interesting anecdotes regarding this neighborhood. He lived just around the corner, on H street, and was on most intimate terms with Mr Seward, and they two, with Attorney-General Speed, of the cabinet, and one or two other congenial spirits frequently met at Mr Seward's house to spend a pleasant evening.

"I was with him that night on which he was stabbed," said Justice Carter to a Star reporter yesterday afternoon, "and I was at his bedside when he died. I was with him all the time except during the few minutes I was absent at his residence for my hat and coat. I was at my residence when I heard the news of the attempt on the life of Secretary Seward. I had just taken off my hat and was about to go to his residence when I met a man who said he was wanted at Mr Seward's, that Mr Seward had been attacked and almost murdered. We didn't wait to hear anything more, but started around. I know I went without my hat. When we got there we found the Secretary in a very bad condition and if he had not fallen down behind the bed he would have been stabbed to death. You must remember that Mr Seward was, at the time confined to his bed by injuries he had received when thrown from his carriage but a short time before and could offer scarcely any resistance to the powerful man to whom had been assigned the task of dispatching him.

"Well the doctor commenced to bind up his wounds and I rendered what assistance I could, and when we had just about finished a carriage drove up to the door and an officer, I think it was Col Hosmer (who was then connected with the Judge-Advocate-General's office) came in and told us that the President had been shot. That was the first intimation we had of the attack upon President Lincoln. Col Hosmer had been hunting for Gen Barnes and said that Mrs Lincoln was anxious to have him come at once to her husband's bedside. Of course he was ready to go and I went to the door with them intending to return to Mr Seward's after intending to accompany what assistance I could, but when we got to the carriage the driver, a Darkey, said he was afraid to drive back to the house on 10th street where the President had been taken. He said the soldiers wouldn't believe he had any business there and would arrest us all. I stepped into the hall and took a hat off the rack (I think I told General Barnes and Col Hosmer to get into the carriage. They obeyed and then I pushed the Darkey in also mounted the box and drove to 10th street myself. A cordon of soldiers had been stretched across the street but I was not delayed for I shouted that I had the Surgeon General of the army inside the carriage!"

IN RECENT YEARS

the Seward house has been occupied by the offices of the Commissary General. But it was vacated when the State, War and Navy Department building was completed. No 17 is not at present in a good condition as it ought to be to receive such stylish folks as the Blaine family, but in a few days the house will be in the possession of an army of painters, paper hangers, upholsterers and plumbers, and there will be no end to the renovating and repairing. Just how much Mr Blaine will expect of the interior no one knows, but if he only invests as much money as Mr Letter pays him annually for the big Blaine mansion on Dupont Circle he will have $10,000 worth of refitting done.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD

is pretty thickly sprinkled with houses that have histories of National importance. Next door to No 17 is the residence of Senator Don Cameron, one of the most conspicuous social centers in Washington. The Senator's home is known as the old Taylor mansion. It was built by Ogle Taylor in 1828 and in its rooms have assembled the great men of this country from that day to this. For forty years Ogle Taylor dispensed a lavish hospitality to men of political, military, and naval prominence and such men as Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, John Quincy Adams and Gen Jackson were his frequent guests. In later days the visitors have been hardly less conspicuous in National history, the feasts have been as numerous and as magnificent and the reputation of the house has been considerably enhanced. The Taylor house was the last place visited by President William Henry Harrison before he was stricken with the mortality which caused his death. The old fashioned mansion is but little changed so far as its exterior is concerned and if old Ogle Taylor, who was one of the few native millionaires of the early part of this century, was to come back to life he would recognize the property at once, but he would be mystified as soon as he got inside, for there have been many improvements in the interior arrangements.

On the corner above is the Cosmos Club building, another place of interest for here Dolly Madison held court for years after the death of her husband—President Madison. Here the witty and beauty of the nation gathered at the widow's receptions and no more brilliant assemblies have graced later days than those which crowded the spacious parlors and halls of the Madison house. The house was built early in the present century by Mr Cutts, who was connected by marriage with the Madisons family. After Mrs Madison's death the property was purchased by Commodore Wilkes, the captor of the Confederate Commissioners Mason and Slidell and the commander of the Wilkes exploring expedition. While the Commodore resided there the house was surrounded by a good deal of vacant ground, but when he departed most of the ground was sold and built upon.

The Sumner house so long the home of Charles Sumner, is diagonally across the way and is now a part of the Arlington Hotel.

On the west side of Lafayette Square are two or three houses of more than ordinary interest. One of them is the Sickles mansion, now the property of Mr Washington McLean. Another is known as the Murray house, and here Representative Scott of Pennsylvania resides when he is in the city. The place was built by the late William Murray, of New York, the Cabinet minister, the Congressman and the Commodore Decatur. On the north side of the Murray house is the Decatur mansion now occupied by Gen E F Beale. The house was built from designs by Latrobe for Commodore Decatur, and it was from here that the gallant tar went to meet his death at Bladensburg from the pistol of his adversary, Commodore Barron. Since then the house has been occupied by Sir Charles Vaughan the British Minister there, and by Martin Van Buren while a Secretary of State. It is said that every President from Madison to Grant has been entertained in that house.

On the north side of the square is the Corcoran mansion, and that old factory before the late millionaire bought it. It was owned at one time by Daniel Webster, and in the forties it was occupied by Mr Packenham the British Minister. In later years the French ministers made it their headquarters, and when Mr Corcoran was absent in Europe during the war of the rebellion it was protected by the French Minister to whom Mr Corcoran hastily leased it to prevent it from being confiscated by the government and used as a hospital.

It is more than probable that within the next year or so the high and explosive looking fence which surrounds Lafayette park will be removed and the regulation post-and-chain fence will take its place. The old barricade will then be removed from one historic locality to another scarcely less notable for Congress has provided that when the lights in Lafayette Square by the removal of the clumsy old fence it shall be donated to the Gettysburg Battlefield Association to be used for the purpose of fencing in certain portions of that dark and bloody ground.

With Mr Blaine as President Harrison's Secretary of State Lafayette Square will be as celebrated in the present as it ever was in the past, for there diplomatic movements will be planned the effect of which no man can prophesy.

FROM THE STATE CAPITOL.

The Bangor Police Bill Passes the Senate in Concurrence.

The Provisions of the Measure.

The Boothbay Division Bill Gets Through the Senate.

The Question of Moving the State Capital.

Maine at the Centennial of Washington's Inauguration.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

AUGUSTA, Feb. 12. Routine work in the House was relieved only by a little debate on the order regulating the salaries of police officers and on the dentistry bill. In the Senate the measure providing for a division of Boothbay, which was passed on by the House, came up and after a stormy passage received port by a vote of 15 for and 12 against. "How long are you going to have this Legislature held?" was asked Clerk Fessenden to-day. "I don't see how we can possibly get through before through before the 13th of March," was his reply and the mass of matter that goes through to the Engrossing Clerk every day would indicate even a later date of adjournment.

Some little excitement was created over the receipt by members of the House of letters of invitation to attend the inauguration ceremonies. These letters came from Washington and were addressed "To the Honorable So and So, House of Representatives, Bangor, Me." This may be an omen if the Portland people believe in omens.

Senate.

In the Senate to-day, on motion of Mr. Haines, of Kennebec, the resolve to provide a commission to inquire into the system of taxation of other States and this State and to report to the Governor and Council was taken from the table and referred to the Committee on Legal Affairs.

Mr. Ryder, of Penobscot, moved that the bill additional to an act authorizing the construction of a wharf at Winterport into the tide water of the Penobscot river was taken up and the vote passing it to be engrossed was reconsidered and it was then referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Resolves to provide for a State valuation were passed to be engrossed.

Messrs. Haines, of Kennebec and Libby, of Cumberland, made an onslaught to-day on bills granting charters to steam railroads. These Senators took the ground that the constitutional statutes provide that the charters shall be granted by the Railroad Commissioners and yet there cannot companies persist in bringing in bills before the Legislature. These bills were laid on the table and will probably be taken from there and referred to the Judiciary Committee as a test.

The Bangor Police Bill Passed.

Bill, an act regulating the appointment of members of the police force of Bangor, came from the House, passed to be engrossed and on motion of Mr. Simpson, of Penobscot, the bill was passed to be engrossed in concurrence under suspension of the rules.

Following is a draft of the bill:

An act regulating the appointment of the members of the Police Force of the City of Bangor.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in Legislature assembled, as follows:

Sect. I. No person shall be appointed to the police or watch of the City of Bangor, as policeman, patrolman, watchman or keeper, or for any position of like rank, or for any position of inferior rank thereto, unless such person shall be a citizen of the United States, not under twenty-five years of age, and shall have successfully passed a competitive examination as regards the necessary qualifications for the position as herein provided, within two years before said appointment, and shall have had a continuous residence in the city of Bangor, from at least two years before said examination to the time of said appointment, and shall hold such office or position during good behavior and prompt attention to duty. When any policeman, patrolman, watchman, or keeper shall have arrived at the age of sixty years he shall be honorably discharged. The Mayor and Aldermen shall, as soon as may be, after the passage of this act, provide for such competitive examination, by proper rules and regulations, which rules and regulations may thereafterwards be amended by said Mayor and Aldermen.

Sect. II. Such rules and regulations shall determine who shall constitute the examining board and how they shall be appointed and the term of service of each member thereof. Such examining board shall consist of not less than three citizens who shall serve without pay, and not more than a majority of whom shall be from the same political party, but shall include the city physician or some other competent physician or surgeon of approved reputation and standing. Said rules and regulations shall provide for applying all vacancies in such examining board.

Sect. III. All such examinations, except the surgical part thereof, shall be public and after reasonable public notice to be prescribed by said rules and regulations, and the examiners shall make a file with the City Clerk, to remain as part of the public files of the city, full report of all said examinations with such special details as may be required by such rules and regulations, and shall state in said reports which candidates have successfully passed such examination and the relative standing of such successful candidates. Except as otherwise herein expressly provided, all said examinations and reports shall be as provided by said rules and regulations and amendments thereof.

Sect. IV. All appointments hereafter for any office or position described in section one, shall be made by the Mayor with the approval of the aldermen by selection from a list of not more than three persons from said successful candidates, who have been certified by the examining board as having attained the highest rank and all removals from such office or position shall be likewise made by the Mayor with said approval.

Sect. V. Every appointment of deputy marshal, captain of the watch, sergeant of police, and all other appointments to said police or watch, except as herein otherwise provided and except the city marshal or other head of police, and except detectives, not employed in the ordinary duties of the force shall be made by selection, on recommendation of the marshal from those persons who have been members of said police or watch, for a continuous period of at least twelve months before such appointment.

Sect. VI. The City Marshal shall be elected by written ballot in convention of the Board of Aldermen and Common Council of the City of Bangor as provided by law and the ordinances of the City of Bangor.

Sect. VII. [illegible] police force of the city, [illegible] employed temporarily on extraordinary occasions.

Sect. VIII. Except as herein expressly provided this act shall not take away or impair any authority or power relative to police or watch, vested in the City Council, Aldermen, Mayor or any other officer, or official board of the City of Bangor.

Sect. IX. This act shall take effect when approved.

The Boothbay division case, which bill was passed by the House was opened by a tame discussion to-day, which waxed warmer and warmer and delayed the adjournment till 1 P. M. The principal speakers against division were Libby, of Cumberland, Hinckley, Freeman and Poor. Among those who spoke in its favor were Senators Walton, Collins and Kendall.

The bill got through and the Boothbay divisionists are happy, but it was a much closer case than they anticipated.

House.

In the House to-day the bills for the salaries under the Barker order were all passed to be engrossed with the exception of the dentistry bill which occasioned quite a lively debate in which Mr. Looney, of Portland and Judge Stearns of Caribou, took an active part. Mr. Looney spoke in favor of the bill and Judge Stearns took an opposite view. Among these bills for regulating salaries of public officials was one relating to the salary of the Bangor Municipal Court Recorder.

Mr. Barker spoke briefly on this matter. Included in these was one for increasing the salary of the Kennebec Attorney to $1,000. The discussion of the Dentistry bill was cut short by adjournment and the matter was assigned for to-morrow.

Mr. Chadbourne, of Biddeford, presented the following bill which was referred to the Committee on Banking: That no savings bank, mortgage, loan, trust or banking company, association or institution, incorporated under the laws of this State or any other State and doing business in this State shall act or do business as executor, administrator or guardian, anything in their charter to the contrary notwithstanding.

Mr. Goodwin, of Skowhegan, presented an order for the Committee on Education to ascertain the expediency of devising some means for preserving the geological specimens which were collected at considerable cost during the two surveys of Maine. These are now stored in the basement where the labels have become removed in many instances and the collection otherwise damaged.

The Railroad Tax Distribution Bill Signed.

Governor Burleigh to-day signed the bill for distributing the excise tax collected from the E. & N. A. R. R. Co., among the cities and towns entitled thereto.

The Capital Moving Question.

Bangor is taking a part in the capital moving melee and just at present her energy bids fair to overshadow the Portland boom. Augusta, whose sidewalks, boarding houses, and politicians, have been glowingly (?) set forth in a certain newspaper's articles has had very little to say as yet. Meanwhile the capital moving committee from the Legislature have enjoyed the bountious hospitalities of Portland, and by a singular coincidence the first to welcome them on their arrival were Hon. Albion Little and Hon. J. P. Baxter of the reception committee. Did it occur to the committee that these two gentlemen own the most available Capitol site in Portland, 160x300 feet, and that they would consent to sacrifice it for $75,000? If the committee thought on these things they kept it to themselves and put took light heartily of the good cheer provided. By another singular coincidence Mr. Baxter is said to have a controlling interest in the Portland Press which at the first of the session endeavored to find as much fault with the Augusta sidewalks as the Advertiser of Monday succeeded in doing with Portland's pedestrian thoroughfares. And so the fun goes on. Your correspondent had the pleasure of listening to the comments of a member, who at first espoused the cause of "removal." These may give an idea of the situation of things. He said: "I favored a new State House, but I confess I had not counted the cost. I was not prejudiced particularly as to the location, but favored Portland. I however took occasion to investigate the matter a little on my own behalf and as regards Portland I think the Herald correspondent from Portland when he said there is a painful suspicion that is at the root of some of the talk hit the nail on the head."

"Speculation Rather than Patriotism

"What do you think of the arguments advanced by a certain newspaper with regard to erecting a Capitol with $100,000 of the direct tax, which it is hoped the Government will return to the people, and the imagined contribution of $100,000 from Portland citizens?"

"I think it the veriest nonsense. Why, look at the Capitol of the State of Connecticut, and there is no record of extravagant expenditure against it. Yet it cost $2,534,024.46 and the lot and furnishings increased that sum by $806,526.27. Now Maine has 25,000 more population than the State of Connecticut and I am glad to say is no more inclined than her mother neighbor to do things by halves. Now for the Portland Press or any paper to pretend that we can have a suitable and new State House for less than one-sixth of that amount is simply absurd. These new Capitol schemes have always proved a leech on the tax payers' pocket books. New York modestly concluded to adorn herself with a new building for $3,000,000. She has expended $18,000,000 and the building is still incomplete."

A fellow laborer in the legislative mill who had been listening remarked: "I agree with you on many points, but I would like to see Maine have a new State building before many years, though I'll predict that any more than New York's capital was placed in the city of New York, and there are no more reasons for it."

"Where would you locate it?" was asked.

"Well, when the proper time comes the pushing city of Bangor will develop a backing that will surprise some people in the State."

And so the conversation ceased, but sufficient to show an inking of what practical members are thinking, and by the way practical men are not a scarcity in the present Legislature. These remarks were not the only ones which have been heard on this matter and there seems to be some common sense suggestions in the following:

"With two exceptions the State of Maine has to-day a better Capitol than any State in New England and a moderate appropriation for repairs and enlargement would fit it to meet the demands of the State for years to come. It appears the imperative demands for caring for the State's business which must begin that relate to the erection of new buildings, especially at Augusta, the need of a [illegible] meeting [illegible] women, another generation has [illegible] care of our sick [illegible]

the centennial celebration of the inauguration of President Washington, written by Hon. James G. Blaine, Chairman of the Commission, calling attention to the participation on the part of the State in the celebration which is deemed desirable, and requesting him to take such action in the premises as he may regard necessary. After referring to the magnitude of the affair, as laid out by the committee of arrangements, the communication says: "The committee considers that one of the most appropriate features of the celebration and one that will make its national character most distinctly apparent will be the military display; and in order to make it impressive as such it is strongly urged that each State should be represented in the column. We heartily concur in this desire of the committee and trust that such measures may be taken as will secure as large as possible a representation of the volunteer militia of our State. It is understood that the committee will furnish the troops with rations and quarters while in New York, so that the only provision necessary to be made is for transportation. We believe it to be superfluous to undertake to enlarge upon the propriety of providing for the adequate participation of the State of Maine in the ceremonies of this national anniversary, that to do so would seem to call in question the regard of our people for the name and fame of Washington, their love of country and pride in its history and character."

CONGRESSIONAL.

The Naval Appropriation Bill Passes the Senate.

The Smalls-Ellot Election Case in the House.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. When the doors were opened the Senate resumed consideration of the Naval Appropriation bill, the pending question being Mr. Chandler's amendment to strike out the words requiring the new cruising monitor to be constructed of the type and under the plans and specifications of Mr. Thomas, of Illinois.

Mr. Chandler continued his argument in support of the amendment.

Remarks were also made by Messrs. Morgan and Hale.

The bill was discussed at some length and after an amendment, offered by Mr. Hale, appropriating $50,000 for testing the Hurst guns, the bill was passed.

On motion of Mr Evarts the report of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, as to outrages in Washington county, Texas, was taken up and after Mr. Evarts had spoken on it for some time, he yielded to a motion to adjourn, and at 4.45 the Senate adjourned.

House.

The House resumed consideration of the Smalls-Elliot contested election case.

Mr. Johnson, of Indiana, declared that the Elections Committee had done Mr. Smalls great injustice. By its own finding Smalls had 277 majority. He challenged the Democratic members to meet the proof of intimidation in the case.

Mr. McComas, of Maryland, said: This is only a striking case of usurpation of power. What was called an uprising against carpet bag rule, bribery and robbery, ended in an overthrow of the civil and political rights of the colored people of the South. The manufactories and industries of the United States would not long tolerate the counting of the blacks in representation, whereby one free trade vote in South Carolina availed as much as five white protection votes in Kansas. One white man in the black States, on this floor, equalled five white men in the North in representative power.

After some remarks by Mr. Outhwaite, of Ohio, contestant Smalls was accorded the floor, to advocate his claims. He had supposed, he said, that the case was to be tried upon the evidence taken, but he found that he was placed upon trial for an act said to have been committed in 1873 in South Carolina. He had been arrested in 1877, charged by the Democrats with receiving a bribe in 1873, but he was as innocent of the charge as a babe unborn. He had been convicted and had appealed to the United States Supreme Court and the appeal had been docketed.

Pending the appeal Governor Simpson without his request granted him a pardon. The Governor had appointed him a captain of militia for "meritorious service." The Governor would hardly consider taking a bribe meritorious service.

Pending further debate, the House adjourned at 6.30.

The young people of the Unitarian Society will present an operetta, to be followed by a tragedy in two acts, at the Unitarian memorial parlors next Tuesday evening. Active arrangements are being made and it is expected to be a most enjoyable and successful affair.

It is expected that there will be a large attendance at the masquerade ball to be given by the members of Daniel Chaplin Camp, Sons of Veterans, at City Hall, Friday night, and the committee have disposed of a good number of tickets. It is intended to be a very pleasant event.

Some vessel building will be commenced upon the Penobscot early in the spring. Capt. Bartlett, formerly of the Brig George E. Dale, will build a three-masted schooner and Capt. Charles Barbour will construct another of the same description. They will be of good size and well made.

The reception to be given this evening by Penobscot Lodge, No. 7, I. O. O. F., promises to be an enjoyable event and there will doubtless be a large attendance. The Apollo Quartette will sing and there will be other entertainment on the programme. All Odd Fellows are invited to attend.

A man named Gillett, belonging in Greenville, and another named Dority, belonging in Old Town, were brought down and lodged in jail last night to serve thirty days for default of payment of fine and costs for drunkenness imposed by Judge Wilson in the Old Town Municipal Court.

The Cecilia Club will render the Spinning chorus from the "Flying Dutchman" at the next concert, in addition to "Fair Ellen" and other choruses. It is hoped that the club will be able to give the Messiah next season. It is proposed to rehearse this work during this season and thus prepare for good work next winter.

A trial of the new Osgood snow plow was made yesterday and its working was viewed by Mayor Bragg and members of the City Government. Its arrangement is such that it sweeps all of the snow outward from the fences, and makes a broad clean path. The plow will probably be purchased by the city, as it is very satisfactory.

The valentine entertainment and supper to be given by the Floral Society connected with the Universalist Church, at the vestry to-morrow evening, will doubtless be a very pleasant affair, as arrangements are being made with that end in view. Supper will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock, and the entertainment will follow. There should and undoubtedly will be a large attendance.

Snow began falling early yesterday morning, and continued through the day, coming down lightly, and adding two or three inches to that already covering the ground. The snow plows were obliged to come out and make paths for pedestrians. About the same amount fell along the line of the Bangor and Piscataquis Railroad to Greenville, as in this city. The trains were not delayed by the storm.

Mr. F. O. Buzzell, of the Essex Street Free Baptist Church, entertained the members of his Sunday School class at his residence, 40 Jefferson street, last evening. Members who have met there on former occasions know it means a very enjoyable time. The evening was spent with music, games and a general social time. Ice cream, cake and chocolate were served during the evening. His class is one of the largest in the school and numbers about forty.

Benjamin Robinson, Esq., of Carmel, who for many years has been engaged in the wool-combing business, and whose mill was some time since destroyed by fire, is about to resume his business in this city, having leased the carding mill in Morse & Co's [illegible] of which he will assume [illegible]

Mr. Thaxter Shaw, of Vanceboro, was in the city Monday night, at the Penobscot Exchange.

The ship Llewellyn J. Morse, Captain Savory, of this city, which arrived at San Francisco February 1st, from Baltimore, furled all sail to be towed into the harbor. On the bar the hawser from the steam tug Hercules parted, and several seas broke on board the ship. After a time the tug's hawser got afoul of her propeller. The tug Monarch then came up and parted one hawser. Steamtug Etna finally towed the ship in safety into port.

Edward Bragdon, of Franklin, who was recently arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Hathaway, and taken through this city to Portland, was arraigned in the United States Court Monday charged with selling liquor without a United States license. He was fined $35. Robert McCall, of Waterville, for the same offense, was fined $50 and costs. Benjamin Riley, of Chelsea, was also fined $50 and costs. Charles King, of Sherman, was bound over to the June term of court, to be held in this city.

Of the Bowdoin College Glee Club which will visit the city later in the season, the Portland Advertiser says: "The best Glee Club that ever visited this city. Other clubs have been here but none of them compare with the Bowdoin boys in giving people an idea of the way songs are sung on the campus." The club has been increased to twenty members and has been enthusiastically received in the different places in the State, where concerts have been given. The banjo and guitar club is also a feature of the concerts.

The Maine Granite and Improvement Company have secured a $70,000 contract to furnish dressed granite for Prospect Park, Brooklyn. This park is a new one and it is believed that this outlay of $70,000 in the beginning of a much larger expenditure. The present contract is mainly for entrances to the park, with some side walls, and calls for some polished and carved work. Bothired and gray granite will be used. The contract will be executed at C. J. Hall's yards, in Belfast, and will keep a large crew busy four or five months.

GOOD TEMPLARS. Grand Chief Templar J. H. Hamilton, organized a lodge of Good Templars at Richmond Corner, Monday evening, Feb. 11th. Officers were elected as follows: John Purington, C. Templar; Miss Lizzie A. Dinsmore, V. Templar; Daniel C. Webber, Secretary. C. E. Dinsmore was appointed Lodge Deputy. Mr. Hamilton will attend Oxford District Lodge at So. Paris, Wednesday, 13th and Cumberland District Lodge at New Gloucester Feb. 14th, after which he will travel for a few days in Cumberland County.

ROUGH ON BURGLARS. The latest thing in "rough on burglars" is a small wedge shaped nickel plated device weighing fifteen ounces, which is placed on the floor at the bottom of the door to be guarded. If a burglar succeeds in picking the lock, or otherwise unfastening a door, the moment the attempt to open the door is made it acts off an alarm bell in the device and it makes noise enough to awaken the whole household, and at the same time the sharp pegs in the bottom prevent any opening of the door. With one of these give-aways at each door and some similar arrangement at the windows, burglars would soon find their profession not such a field of fortune as it has been in the past.

THE ALGONQUIN. It is reported that the fine new hotel at St. Andrews, N. B., the Algonquin, has been leased to Fred A. Jones, the proprietor of Hotel Dufferin, St. John. The Algonquin will be one of the most elegant and complete resorts in the East. It is located on the highest point in the town, fifty feet above tide water and in the immediate vicinity of Forty Tippery. The building is three stories high and the piazzas are 340 feet long by 15 feet wide. The windows of the house will command magnificent views of Chamcook Mountain, St. Croix River, Passamaquoddy Bay, the Bay of Fundy and the group of islands known as the West Islands, which divides the waters of the two bays. It is intended to open the hotel by the first of July.

DEATH OF GARDNER PHILLIPS, ESQ. Mr. Gardner Phillips, a prominent citizen of Augusta, died Saturday, aged 83 years. He was a prominent worker in the temperance cause. He was city marshal at Augusta at the beginning of the prohibitory movement introduced by Neal Dow, and served the first warrant issued in the State under that law. Three children died before him—one a son being killed in the battle of Cedar Mountain in 1862, and three daughters survive him, one of whom is the wife of Rev. I. J. Mead, editor of the Gospel Banner. Mr. Phillips' mother was a niece of the celebrated Dr. Chalmers of Scotland. A daughter of Mr. Phillips is the wife of Mr. Charles L. Chalmers, of this city, and he and his wife attended the funeral in Augusta yesterday.

ARMY AND NAVY REUNIONS. It has heretofore occurred that at G. A. R. National Encampments, survivors of the same regiment, battery or boat, who are in attendance, and who have not met since the war, are unable to find each other by reason of having no designated place or time to rally, and comrades living thousands of miles apart learn too late of the others attendance at the same encampment. To avoid such conditions at the coming encampment in August, there will be a reunion of every regiment, boat and battery that served on the Union side, and the time and place of such meeting will be announced in advance to every veteran who sends name, regiment, battery or boat and post-office address to Co. K, Pier, Secretary, Milwaukee, Wis. Officers of regimental or other reunion societies should give early notice of meeting and it sent to above address same will be published in the official Encampment Bulletin and reach every soldier's and seaman's notice.

ST. MARY'S PARISH COFFEE PARTY. The coffee party given by the ladies of St. Mary's parish opened in Norombega Hall last evening very successfully, and there was a good attendance of the members of the parish and their friends. About the hall are arranged in a very attractive manner a number of booths and tables containing articles for sale and to be guessed upon. These are in charge of a number of young ladies of the parish, who faithfully and efficiently discharge their duties. A good amount was realized by them last evening. Refreshment tables are arranged along the wall upon the left of the hall, and there can be obtained at any time delicious refreshments served by an efficient corps of waiters. These present last evening were entertained by the performances of Stratton, Sherrill upon a test wire [illegible] the gallery [illegible]

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY.

Its Observance at City Hall Last Evening Under the Auspices of Daniel Chaplin Camp, Sons of Veterans.

Lincoln's Birthday was celebrated last evening at City Hall, in an appropriate manner under the auspices of Daniel Chaplin Camp, Sons of Veterans, and the exercises were interesting and of a character well suited to the occasion. The preparations were made by the members of the Camp, and the observance was well carried out. The Sons of Veterans and members of B. H. Beale Post, G. A. R., assembled at their hall at 7 o'clock and soon afterwards marched to City Hall, taking seats in front. The former were in full uniform and several of their members acted as ushers.

The hall presented a very attractive appearance as a result of the care and taste in decorating that had been given by the members of the order. Upon the wall in front of the hall were hung the pictures of Lincoln, Grant and Sheridan, surrounded by flags of different sizes. The galleries were draped with flags, and from the ceiling bunting was suspended. The table upon the platform was also decorated with a large stars and stripes. The whole made a handsome effect, and the decorations were appropriate to the occasion. Upon the platform were seated members of the Woman's Relief Corps, and there was a fair attendance of citizens in general.

Gen. Charles Hamlin, who was to have presided at the meeting was unexpectedly called out of town, and Harry E. Chapman, Esq., a member of the Sons of Veterans, occupied the chair in his stead. Mr. Chapman called the assemblage to order at a few minutes before eight o'clock and in a few words stated the significance of the celebration, and called upon Prof. J. S. Sewall, of the Theological Seminary, for prayer.

The Apollo Quartette then sang a response and the song "To Thee O Country," with Miss Hutchinson as accompanist, with excellent expression.

Peregrine White, Esq., was the first speaker called upon. Mr. White said that he voted for Abraham Lincoln for President and would not exchange that vote for any since Washington. Lincoln was a remarkable man, running to his place as President of the United States through sheer pluck and ability and in the face of great odds. His place to the hearts of the people to-day was not due to his merely being President or the emancipation of the negroes, but his imperishable renown is owing particularly to his great qualities of head and heart, although his services to his country were of the highest order.

Lincoln first came into prominence in the debate in 1858 with Judge Douglas, "The Little Giant," who was regarded as one of the best debaters of the day. The result of the debate, in its intellectual sense, was never settled in all minds, but it gave Lincoln a great reputation and was undoubtedly the means of his being nominated for the Presidency. His Gettysburg speech was a great effort, but his greatest act was his emancipation of the slaves. The Nation was then in a state of great solicitude, but at the supreme moment Mr. Lincoln sent forth his fiat, and slavery received the blow that resulted in its extermination. It was Mr. Lincoln's firm belief up to the time of his first inauguration that the South could be placated, and he used all peaceful means possible to bring this about. He said to the South, we are not enemies but friends, but this was of no avail, and secession followed, the Nation being subjected to the horrors of a civil war. Then his aim was to preserve the union.

Mr. White then quoted from Sunset Cox, who said that Abraham Lincoln in broad humanity and pure devotion to his country stood the peer of any, and from Emerson, who called Lincoln one of the most remarkable of men and one in whose soul there was no memory of a wrong.

At the conclusion of Mr. White's remarks the Apollo Quartette sang "We are Coming Father Abraham."

Dr. D. A. Robinson was next called upon. He said eighty years ago to-day there was born in one of the wild, unsettled counties this boy Abraham Lincoln, and his birth, like so many of our eminent American citizens, was humble. He was born in a log cabin and his progress shows what opportunities this country offers to its young men. While the young men of to-day would not be expected to have the veneration for Abraham Lincoln that their fathers had, it is an excellent sign that the Sons of Veterans are taking upon themselves to celebrate his birthday. There have been two great crises in the history of this country, and these are associated with the names of Washington and Lincoln. The one drove back the enemies from without and the other defeated the enemies within. It is sometimes said that our greatest men are not elected Presidents, and it may often be true for we have seen examples of this, but in the long run we find among our Presidents some of the greatest minds that our country has produced.

What an inspiration there is in the life of Lincoln, who began at the lowest round of the ladder and worked his way upward. In spite of his poverty, obscurity, lack of education and friends, by his perseverance and desire to be and to do something worthy of an American citizen he became what he was. His character teaches us loyalty to our country, for he was always looking out for the best interests of his native land. We should teach loyalty, protection and devotion to our country in our schools. One reason why our country has become so great is that the inspiration of former deeds of patriotism has descended through the different ages, and our young men should take their inspiration from the example of Abraham Lincoln.

The Apollo Quartette then sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Rev. F. C. Rogers was the next speaker. He said great men are the wealth of a nation, rather than her extent of territory. We boast of an immense wealth, but it would be better for us to boast of our great men. We do well to recognize and admire the great souls who serve us, and we do well to keep their graves green. There were many qualities in Mr. Lincoln that compel our love and admiration. Some men excel in some one thing, but in other directions they may be weak. Such men will do well to keep in their own orbit. Lincoln was an all around man, with a great mind and a great heart. Take him all in all he probably had no superior, for he was kind as well as keen, and firm when the occasion demanded it.

That great measure, the emancipation of the slaves, took birth in his mind and is finally carried out. It was his heart that made him one of the [illegible] and sympathetic men [illegible] they do not try to [illegible] for the [illegible] was of the people and kept himself among and in close connection with them. His marvelous patience was one of his great qualities. He could endure and be still, suffer and keep silent. All honor to the man, the party and the soldiers who preserved our country.

The quartette then sang "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean."

Rev. J. E. Adams was asked to speak. He said that he was unprepared to make a speech and would not attempt one as the hour was late. He had a great admiration for Lincoln and felt sure during the war that a leader was at the head of the Nation. He was in Washington on the Sunday before the battle of Gettysburg and all was nervousness and excitement. On the next Wednesday the news of the battle came and he and others went to the field of Gettysburg. All acknowledged that the great battle had been fought and that the war had been settled. The rebels themselves felt sure that secession had received a death blow, but said they would fight to the end. Rev. Mr. Adams hoped that the celebration of the evening would be the beginning of annual observances of the birthday of Lincoln.

A song "Blessed be the Ground" by the quartette followed.

The exercises of the evening were closed by the singing of America, the audience uniting. All of the speakers were listened to with close attention and much appreciated, while the singing of the Apollo Quartette was an interesting feature of the celebration.

Rev. GEO. S. CHADBOURNE, D.D., says:

"To the multitude I have already given with Coughs and Serious Throat and Lung diseases, I feel my duty to recommend INGALLS' Throat and Lung SPECIFIC as pre-eminent in the best medicine for the throat and lungs within the compass of my knowledge. Its curative effects upon my friends have been truly astonishing."

Rev. A. GOULD says:

"The benefit which has resulted from the use of 'Your Throat and Lung SPECIFIC' in my family impels me to furnish you my testimony in regard to its efficacy as a specific for lung and bronchial affections. A severe cough is the case of croup. It affords relief at once. Several of my people have tried it in room and cooks, through my influence, and their testimony in regard to its value is equal with my own. In fact, I have never heard anywhere any different testimony about it. There can be but one opinion among those who use it, and if any others are doubtful, let them try it, and they will doubt no longer."

MEN WHO DILLY DALLY.

"Do I believe in women learning to use tools, to drive a nail, turn a screw, and, perhaps, build a platform, as the girls did at the normal school not long since?"

"Indeed I do," was my emphatic response.

My bachelor friend, who clings pertinaciously to old ideas, as the hair on his crown departed, twirled the corner of his beloved mustache and said in a despondent tone:

"Well, I don't know what we are coming to. Pretty soon, a man won't have any chance in this world, for the women are crowding him everywhere, and they will work for wages which a healthy man would starve on."

I smiled. "Didn't you tell me once that the actual experience of the average individual was more interesting than all the novels ever written, and worth a million times?"

"Well, probably I did, it is my fate to make remarks of that sort to some person who will store them away in her memory while a man would never think of them again."

"But you believe that experience is valuable as a help to others?"

"Undoubtedly."

"Permit me to relate mine in only one paragraph."

"Without embellishments of any sort?"

"Utterly destitute of trimmings; real hard, Gradgrindian facts, and my companion in misery will attest the truth of my statement."

"I shall be quite content with your account, and shall prepare myself for annihilation."

My bachelor friend settles himself comfortably in an arm chair, gives my companion a mock heroic glance and closed his eyes, but never for one moment paused from twisting his mustache. I began:

"On the 20th day of August, 1888, a mischievous boy threw a stone directly through a pane of glass in a window of the third story of the bedroom of my maid. The boy took to his heels, and I met Joe Glazier at once.

"He will be here to-morrow, ma'am, was the report. A week passed and no glazier. Two weeks passed and still no glazier.

"He says he is awfully sorry, but he can't leave his job but he will send a man up some evening, if that will do, and would you please write a card to say so? The pocket was written, expressing thanks, and promises at the prospect of showing a complete window on the street side of our house. I gave up two lectures, one concert and three teas, lest the matter should be mistaken in my absence, and whatever come, the match must not lose its evening out. The man never came. I tried again. I wrote orders after order, request after request, and finally went in person from place to shop to paint shop in search of a workman. One said in reply, 'I will attend to it at once.' Ten days passed, and he did not. Another wrote:

"'We will be pleased to attend to your order on second morning early next week, except that we cannot do it then, because we are busy.'

"Respectfully yours, SAMUEL LEAN."

"Was that his real name?" asked the bachelor in a cynical tone.

"Of course not! You cannot expect me to punish the poor man by giving real names, not that it may matter for him because he is a shining light in a church where he never lacks engagements, and doubtless prays on Sunday to be forgiven all the sins he has told for six days. Meantime we had three hard storms, and do what we would, the rain drove in upon the carpet and soaked down to the ceiling below. I grew desperate. I said:

"Father, being the family directory,

"She brought it. I had no idea how many pictures and books one city could hold until I commenced at the top of Beacon Hill.

"Father, I said, that light of glass must be put in before another rain storm. Do you not on your allegiance go to each one in turn until you find a man who will come with you. Don't take a promise, don't listen to excuses, get your man and bring him home.

"I'll do it," said Esther, showing all her white teeth and deep dimples.

"She left the house at fifty-six minutes to 3 30 alone.

"Esther, I said, repeat fully.

"It is all right, she replied quickly. 'You see I found Mr. Blank himself, after searching all over the city from house to house, where he had been working, or some one guessed he was working, and Mr. Blank said: 'Why, it is a shame he has been bothered so let me see, what's his size? Oh, yes, 9 by 11 all right.' I will be over almost as soon as you are; I must tell my foreman what I want done first.'

"Did you ever attack putty which had been laid on for fifty-six odd years and painted over once? It could not remember the original cost! That was the trial! I had to deal with. The screwdriver, knives and oil, with persuasion and downright forceful shoves and punches, and pushes, at last conquered. It was the hardest task I ever undertook, but its one hour the glass was set, the putty neatly smoothed down, the paint matched from my color box, and I sank into a chair convinced that I had found one task more disagreeable than writing obituary poems, and that was setting glass in windows. Esther and the maid applauded, while they hunted up some salve for my blistered fingers and brought up the debris.

"And now?" asked the bachelor calmly.

"The next day a regular blizzard set in and continued for three days, and the greatest satisfaction I have, next to a feeling of security from pneumonia for my maid and broken ceilings in the old homestead, is the contemplation of the workmen who one by one go away after being told it was too late. From the 10th day of August to the 24th day of November is too long a wait in my home theatre."

"I wouldn't have done it for a $5 bill," said the bachelor.

"When our artisans insist in telling such elephantine fibs about small business matters, it is quite time for women to learn how to handle a chisel or a plane."

Then the bachelor, who knows something of surgery, insisted on examining my bandaged hand, and his only remark was:

"As neat little blisters as I ever saw."

"I so thought, I was born a woman.—Detroit Free Press.

Colonels of the Shinplasters.

"You are quite right in regard to the origin of the postal currency. When all the silver had been sold out of the treasury of the United States early in 1863 I procured from the postoffice department quantities of postage stamps for the purpose of making change—my recollection now is that at that time five and ten cent stamps were the only kinds in use. So, to facilitate the making of change, I had the stamps pasted on slips of paper so as to make 25 and 50 cents. This was done after an agreement with Mr. Montgomery Blair, the then postmaster-general, that he would redeem them in that or other postage stamps. It was soon found that this mode of procedure was impracticable.

"I then persuaded the postmaster-general to procure the engraving and printing of facsimiles of the postal compound postage stamps. Thus the treasury bought from the postmaster-general under an agreement that the postoffice department would redeem them. This was what was called 'postal currency,' and is the kind you inquire about in your letter. Inclosed herewith you will find a sample of this kind of currency. You will notice that it was made redeemable in postage stamps only.

"The postmaster-general soon became tired of the additional care, responsibility and labor that the issuing and redemption of this currency threw upon his office, and he urged that the treasury should relieve him from it. I then procured the passage of a law by congress for the printing of a currency which would represent the fractions of the dollar. These were engraved and printed in denominations of 3, 6, 10, 15, 25 and 50 cent notes, and in contradistinction to the postal currency were called fractional currency, and were receivable for all government dues.—Gen. F. E. Spinner.

Kamtschatkan's Busts of Burden.

Kamtschatkan dogs are probably the most sagacious of all feral types, and are employed and trained to the most careful number for the individual as services required of them. Soon after birth they are placed with their dams in a deep pit, that they may see neither sun nor boat, and, after having been weaned, are condemned to solitary confinement for six months, at the end of which time they are put to a sledge with other dogs, and being extremely shy and frightened within, they run as fast as they can until they become blown and cowed.

After this trip they are remanded to their pit, where they remain 17 and on until they are thoroughly trained and sledge broken. This severe education sours their temper amazingly, and makes them anything but companionable. Drivers are frequently obliged to stun them by a blow on the nose before unharnessing them on account of their savage nature. Besides drawing sledges they tow boats up rivers in summer and keep their masters warm in winter nights. They are remarkable weather prophets and disdain to take signal service bureau, for if, when resting on a journey, they dig holes in the snow, there is certain to be a storm. They are of the husky type, shaggy, with erect curving bushy tails, and not very sharp noses and ears. They live exclusively on fish, which they catch for themselves. Inwinter their ration comprises forty frozen herrings, per day.—Forest and Stream.

A Brave Little Boy.

The Mobile Register tells of a 10-year-old colored boy who deserves to be enrolled among the heroes. His father's house caught fire, and a 3-year-old brother was left inside. The 10-year-old got into a barrel and entered the flames. He almost succeeded in saving his little brother, but the barrel caught fire and he had to let out. The young hero was badly burned, and the baby brother perished in the flames.

Rather a Hard Course.

I heard the other day an authentic story of something that happened here in Boston, which recalls an incident in one of Balzac's novels and tends to support the old saying about truth and fiction. It seems that the wife of a youngman who has a little house of his own somewhere in the outlying districts, but whose salary is very small, fell ill, and was unable to leave her room for several months. The doctor, as often happens, prescribed a great many remedies, tonics and beverages, such as Apollinaris water and champagne, which, being very expensive, were far beyond the young husband's means. What could be done? He was bound that his wife should have everything which the doctor ordered, and his purse having been emptied, he stole out one evening with the parlor clock under his arm as I returned with a $5 bill. A large easy chair was expended two days later for a few bottles of port wine, and to cut the story short, by the time the young woman was able to go down stairs the rooms on the first floor had been stripped of their contents to pay the grocer and the apothecary.

It must have been a bitter moment for the poor young wife when she first saw what havoc had been wrought in her drawing room, and I dare say she felt for a few minutes at least her good man felt that he had been too clever by half. It must be acknowledged, however, that he acted pretty wisely. Health is more important than furniture, and in time the household goods will be replaced. The plan which this enterprising fellow pursued was surely better than that of helping himself out of his master's cash box, and perhaps it was preferable to the ordinary course of running into debt; certainly it was more original.—Boston Post.

Wasps and Bees.

Bees never injure a sound fruit. According to Popular Gardening, wasps will puncture ripe pears, etc., but with bees it is a physical impossibility. Their mandibles are not so constructed, nor are they strong enough to be used in puncturing fruit. Numerous experiments have been tried, among the rest one by putting the hives in an apartment and asking the bees food away and making them fast for a few days at a time, all the time exposing grapes, etc., but the bees would not do any injury even under these conditions. If fruit bursts or is injured by the birds or wasps or anything else, the bee will soon suck all the juice, but that is an advantage rather than an injury to the grower, as the sound fruit is apt to rot by coming in contact with such, or by the juice flowing over the sound fruit.

ECONOMICAL BAKING POWDER.—A curious housekeeper of experience recently made a careful practical test of the comparative baking value of a large number of the baking powders in the market, including those of low and high cost. She found that twenty-five cents' worth of Horsford's Bread Preparation raised more flour and produced much better results than the same money's worth of the cheap adulterated powders, and also that it took fifty cents' worth of the ordinary high-cost baking powders to raise the same quantity of flour. From this she concluded that it was more economical to use the Horsford's than the low-priced adulterated powders, and the product was much better. We commend a trial of this experiment by our lady friends. jan26 d&w1w

ONE FACT

Is worth a column of rhetoric, and an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofulous salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from impure or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

CONFIDENCE BEGOT OF SUCCESS.

So confident are the manufacturers of this world-famed remedy, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, that it will do all that they represent, in the cure of liver, blood and lung diseases, that, after witnessing its thousands of cures for many years, they now feel confident they could sell it (as they are doing through druggists) under a positive guarantee of its giving satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it will be refunded. No medicine of ordinary merit could be sold under such severe conditions with profit to its proprietors, and no other medicine for the diseases for which it is recommended would be offered under guarantee of a cure or no pay. In all blood taints and impurities of whatever name or nature, it is most positive in its curative effects. Pimples, Blotches, eruptions and all skin and scalp diseases are medically cured by this wonderful medicine. Scrofulous disease may affect the glands, causing swellings, or tumors; the bones, causing fever sores, "white swellings," or "joint disease;" or the tissues of the lungs, causing pulmonary consumption. No matter in which one of its myriad forms it exists or manifests itself, "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure it if used perseveringly and in time.

EVERY NIGHT I SCRATCHED

Until the skin was raw. Body covered with scales. Like spots of mortar. Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

I am going to tell you of the extraordinary change your Cuticura Remedies have made in me. About the 1st of April last I noticed some red pimples like mortar all over my body, but thought nothing of it until some time later when it began to look like spots of mortar spotted on, and which came in layers, accompanied with a scratch every night until I would have bleeding scales, which were scratched off again. In the morning I would be covered with my dry scales, and after bathing and using all the medicine I could get from my druggist, and obtaining no relief, I began to notice that my malady was spreading over the body, and have been fully convinced that it was a case of mortar in nature, it is most positive in its curative effects. Pimples, Blotches, eruptions and all skin and scalp diseases are medically cured by this wonderful medicine. Scrofulous disease may affect the glands, causing swellings, or tumors; the bones, causing fever sores, "white swellings," or "joint disease;" or the tissues of the lungs, causing pulmonary consumption. No matter in which one of its myriad forms it exists or manifests itself, "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure it if used perseveringly and in time.

PIM

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and footed by leads on to consumption. It is therefore important that every afflicted sufferer of disease should not mistake the cause of their ills to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies. They become resigned to the fact that death alone will relieve them from their misery. But this will not be so if the afflicted will but use a simple and scientific remedy. Such a remedy is now offered to the public in many cases it completely eradicates all symptoms. The bones and tissues of the nasal organs affected can be restored, if the disease be of long standing, if some so-called remedies can be useful, it is because not sufficiently prepared to be a constant and unremitting cure. SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE is a remedy for every form of catarrh, from simple nasal catarrh to the most loathsome and destructive form, complicated with bronchial ulceration and consumption. Instant relief and a speedy cure are the results of the Radical Cure. Each package contains a vial of Sanford's Radical Cure, and an improved Inhaler, with full directions for its use, and every person suffering from catarrh should send for it to find a cure. It is both agreeable and inexpensive. Price, $1.00. Potter Drug & Chemical Co., Boston.
